To: Those contemplating having a new home built:

I've done it twice now, and it's true—if you give the same set of plans to two different contractors, you'll get two different houses.

The one by Prestige Builders will be the better one.

I am an unusually involved owner who has worked closely with Prestige on the construction of my 13,000 square foot six story home, and I can tell you these guys are great!

Their team approach starts by working with the owner, architect, engineer and permit people. Then they select the best sub contractors [making recommendations to the owner along the way] and control the voluminous paperwork.

Their forte is on-the-job construction-site management. This is, of course, the most important part of building a new home, and they excel at it. They are professionals. The attention to detail by their jobsite superintendent surpassed even my high standards.

Since they understand how a house goes together, they make sure that things are done correctly in the early stages so that items which come later fit perfectly. Prestige's tremendous pride in their work is evident by the constant consideration of the end result.

Their thorough project management greatly helped me understand what was going on throughout construction. They truly understand the concerns of the owner and architect, thus making the process much easier. It was an enjoyable experience.

The Prestige people have a strong work ethic and continually strive to do the job right. I am extremely satisfied with their service and quality, and I recommend them without hesitation. We love our new home.

Sincerely
